Company sues Nestle, bank for disobeying trade agreement

Olufemi Atoyebi, Ibadan

Nestle Nigeria Plc has been dragged before an Oyo State High Court, sitting in Ibadan, by the owner of First Nigeria Enterprises, Prof. Olatoye Ogunbode, for disobeying the trade agreement they both allegedly entered into at the inception of their contract.

Also named as co-defendant in the suit No I/222/2017 is Access Bank Nigeria Plc, which funded the distributorship agreement between Nestle and the applicant.

The case came up for further hearing on Thursday, with Ogunbode's counsel, Kolade Olawuni, of Babalakin and Co. Chamber, compelling the court to restrain first and second defendants from taking any action against Ogunbode's company, pending when the dispute in respect of the company's account would be referred to the Court of Arbitration.

Olawuni said, "Essentially, what we are asking for is for the court to restrain the two parties, that is, Nestle and Access Bank, from taking any further action in respect of the trade account that Ogunbode has in the name of First Nigeria Enterprises. The company has a distributorship agreement with Nestle, which was financed by Access Bank.

"But a dispute has arisen concerning an alleged trade gap. The trade gap is disputed and Ogunbode made an allegation of unfair and unjust treatment and manipulation in his account. We are now before the court to restrain them from taking any action against him pending when the dispute in respect of the account is referred to arbitration.

"The agreement they have at the inception of the distributorship is that any dispute will be referred to arbitration. They have not done that and they have unilaterally decided to take steps that are inimical to his business, which is against the spirit of the agreement. This is just a simple case of maltreatment of a partner involved in a trade agreement.

Firm to celebrate women on international day

Tunde Ajaja

An e-commerce service provider, Kilimall Nigeria, says in commemoration of this year's International Women's Day, slated for March 8, it will align with Nigerian women to share their sentiments, dreams, and fears while striving to pursue and achieve their dreams.

A statement on Friday quoted Kilimall's Regional Director for Africa, Robin Xie, as saying that the firm would

"On February 23, 2017, the court was gracious enough to grant us order of injunction, restraining the two parties from taking any step in the course of the business and help a Nigerian woman who could dare to dream boldly to fulfill her "lotty" dreams. He said the aim was to encourage and inspire women to discard their fears and hindrances.

Xie said the top 10 'dreams' would enter into a draw where a winner would emerge, and towards a provocative letter addressed to Ogunbode on January 19, 2017, saying that they wanted to forestall his business and seize all his instruments of trade."

that Kilimall would help the winner to fulfill the dream. He added that beyond celebrating Nigerian women, the initiative would be an avenue to boost their confidence and aspiration.

He added, "We want them to know that we stand behind and beside them to propel

The defendants were absent when the case returned to court for hearing and presiding Justice Mooshod Abass adjourned the case until April 10, 2017.

them to reach out and dare to achieve much more than they can ever imagine. Also, we will roll out up to 90 per cent discount on selected feminine items across different categories. One woman also stands a chance to win a television.

Red Star begins food delivery service

Sandra Ogunfiditi

Courier service provider, Red Star Express Plc, says it has commenced a food delivery service to create a seamless process for people with time constraints and limited opportunity to order for food.

It said the initiative, known as Express Food Delivery Services, would enable people with busy schedules to order for breakfast, lunch or even dinner at the comfort of their offices or homes with guaranteed delivery within the shortest period.

In a statement on Friday by Fumilayo Erikitola, the company said it had partnered with some prominent eateries and fast food companies in Lagos, and that some of its workers had been spread across the state to make deliveries easier.

The statement added, "The EFDS, as a product, is divided into two forms; the corporate account and individual orders. The corporate account include requests from fast food outlets, restaurants and hotels, while the individual orders include requests from private persons who simply call the EFDS office and make order from participating restaurants of their choice."
